BOND CIRCULATION
PLAN IS REJECTED*Bankers Favor Use of United States Securities Only.*NO DECISION ON REFORM*Commission May Have to Adjourn Without Settlement.*Subcommittee Will Probably Be Appointed to Consider General Details of Matters Submitted to the Financiers at the Present Conference—Graduated Tax on Emergency Circulation Is Discussed.

The proposition to issue a bank circulation upon approved securities other than United States bonds was rejected yesterday by a vote of the currency commission of the American Bankers' Association, now holding sessions in Washington.

This action practically sounds the death knell of a plan for relieving currency stringency which has had many advocates among the financiers of the country for the past ten years.

The method of using municipal, street railway, or other bonds approved by competent authority as the basis of bank circulation, in lieu of government securities, has been strongly advocated by many bankers of the American association.

It was one of the propositions referred to this commission to be considered in its efforts to solve the currency problem. The vote of yesterday is its answer, and probably decides the question for all time in this country, or until such time as there are no government bonds to serve as security for bank circulation.

At the close of the session yesterday afternoon it was stated that about two-thirds of the business to come before the commission had now been disposed of. Though much has been accomplished, it is feared the commission may be compelled to adjourn without reaching a settlement. In this case a meeting would probably be called later to decide upon a definite plan of currency reform to be presented to Congress at the coming session.

Consider Graduated Tax.

Among the other important subjects taken up yesterday by the commission was that of the graduated tax to be imposed upon credit or emergency circulation, if this should be decided upon. This proposition, as it came from the legislative committee of the bankers' association, was that such a tax should be levied upon emergency circulation for a time specified by the national commission at the rate of 3 per cent per annum. In addition, if any bank failed to redeem its circulation within the time specified or to pay its allotment of tax, a tax at the rate of 1 per cent per annum should be imposed for each week the bank should be in arrears. This subject was referred to a special committee for consideration, composed of F. A. Vanderlip, James B. Forgan, and Solomon Wexler. Other questions correlated with this subject will be taken up by the committee and later submitted to the commission in a report. This subcommittee will also determine the status of bank reserves to be used in different parts of the country under varying conditions.

The Chamber of Commerce of New York, in its committee report on this subject, suggested that the proceeds of this graduated tax should pass into the hands of the government and should constitute a guaranty fund for use in the redemption of the notes of failed banks.

Could Invest Excess in Bonds.

If the taxes yield a sum more than adequate for this purpose, the Secretary of the Treasury should be given authority to turn the excess into the general fund of the Treasury and to invest a certain proportion of the fund in government bonds. It has been the experience of the bankers that this guaranty fund would be more than adequate for the purpose. The guaranty fund would be used as a sinking fund.

The question whether notes issued by the national banks should have first lien on securities was before the commission, and the decision of the committee was passed. The general opinion seemed to be that the bank notes should have an equal share with all other means of circulation.

It was believed that a better system would be to issue the notes on a general banking credit. The commission voted against any segregation of assets as securities for the notes. A system of credit notes is now in use in Scotland, Great Britain and Germany, and other countries was considered.

Consider Note Redemption.

The commission also devoted some time yesterday to the consideration of the ample redemption of government banknotes. The clearing house proposition for redemption was also taken up, and many were in favor of the system. While clearing houses established for redemption, it was argued, there would be less strain on the banks when there was a stringency in the money markets of the country.

It is possible that to-day a subcommittee will be appointed to consider many of the general details which have been brought before the commission. While perfect harmony has accompanied the meetings of the commission, most of the time has been devoted to discussion of the principles and plans for a more elastic currency. It is evident, however, that none of the plans as a whole, submitted up to the present time, or which will be submitted, will be accepted by the commission. Each of the ideas suggested is receiving careful consideration, and by extracting the best points and the best systems from the various plans, the commission hopes to solve the currency problem in such a way that there will be no doubt that a bill embodying the commission's views would be acted upon favorably by Congress.

Sweeping Reform Not Favored.

As far as a sweeping currency reform is concerned, the members do not look upon it with favor. In the first place those who are advocating an extensive change of the present laws are aware that it would be a hard matter to have the plan accepted by Congress without great modification.

Members of the commission are inclined to compromise upon a currency reform which will be effective in its purpose and at the same time receive favorable attention from the legislators.

To a certain extent there is a difference of opinion among the members of

HICCUGHS TILL HE DIES.Italian Thinks Affliction a Joke
Until Doctors Fail to Stop It.

Port Chester, N. Y., Nov. 13.—After four months' continuous hiccupping, Antonio Raggiuolo, a foreman for John O. Merritt, a contractor of Port Chester, died to-day in the Ladies Hospital. The young Italian hiccupped until the last, despite the efforts of the best physicians of Port Chester.

Raggiuolo was twenty-two years of age. When he was first seized with the affliction, which eventually caused his death, he laughed and thought his hiccupping a huge joke, as it was the first time he had been affected.

Within a week the young man had to quit work and a few days later took to his bed. He remained there until two weeks ago, when he was removed to the hospital where all efforts to save his life failed.

BELIEVE OIL JURY BRIBED.Members Who Recently Convicted Trust in Ohio Summoned.

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 13.—Prosecutor David Sprung a sensation this afternoon in Findlay by summoning before the adjourned session of the September grand jury the twelve members of the petit jury which recently convicted the Standard Oil Company.

The jurors are being examined behind closed doors, and the first inkling of the proceedings did not leak out until they had been subpoenaed and summoned, and had actually presented themselves.

Following rumors of attempted bribery and corruption, which were persistent during the trial, the present examination of the jurors is deeply suggestive. An agent for one of the companies may be implicated in the grand jury disclosures. The agent was a familiar figure around the courthouse and hotels during the famous trial.

LA FOLLETTE TURNS ON SMOOT.Utah Senator Astounded When He Hears Himself Scored.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 13.—Senator R. M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, gave Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, a decided surprise to-night. Mr. Smoot led La Follette gaily on the platform in the Mormon assembly hall to deliver a lecture under the auspices of the Mormon Young Men's Mutual Improvement Association. The senator, however, turned the tables on Smoot and the first one she met was George Sutherland, for their attitude in the Senate on corporation legislation.

There was applause from the audience but Smoot sat throughout glumly silent.

LEAGUE TO REORGANIZE.Hearst's Organization Plans to Keep Permanent Headquarters.

New York, Nov. 13.—A meeting of the executive committee of the Independence League was held to-night at the Gilbey house, and it was decided to keep open permanently the headquarters of the organization.

A subcommittee was appointed to reorganize the branches of the league throughout the city. This committee is made up of William Astor Chanler, Melville Tinker, Nathan Vidaver, Charles G. Gehring, J. A. Byrne, and George J. Bennett.

Huntsville, Ala., Nov. 13.—Raving in a dying delirium, telling of things that had happened during the life of immemorial silence, Mrs. Alice Thornton, a deaf mute since her birth thirty-five years ago, today spoke in clear and coherent English. Relatives at her bedside were stricken with awe at what they conceived an unnatural visitation, for it was the first time in her life that Mrs. Thornton had ever uttered an intelligible sound of any kind.

At many times her statements were rambling, but her talk showed an apparent familiarity with the language, and even physicians who were at her bedside were astounded at her command of the tongue. She died while talking ramblingly of the happenings during her life, and the physicians who were present were amazed at her ability to speak as well as she was.

ITALIAN ADMIRAL ON VISIT.Inspects Various Shops in League Island Navy Yard.

Philadelphia, Nov. 13.—Accompanied by Capt. Mazzinghi, commanding the Italian cruiser Diore Piamonte, Rear Admiral Robert C. Carr, commanding the Oceanic Squadron of the Italian navy, visited the League Island navy yard this morning. As he drove through the gates, the Italian admiral's flag was unfurled from the masthead of the receiving ship Lancaster, and thirteen guns belched forth their salute.

After meeting Rear Admiral Joseph E. Craig, commandant of the navy yard, and exchanging official courtesies with him, the party drove around the yard, getting out of their carriage several times to go in various shops.

PERU HOLDS ITS SILVER.Will Not Permit Coin to Be Taken Out of the Country.

Lima, Peru, Nov. 13.—Despite the fact that there is no law prohibiting the export of silver, the government to-day refused to permit the shipment of silver to the United States and England by way of Panama.

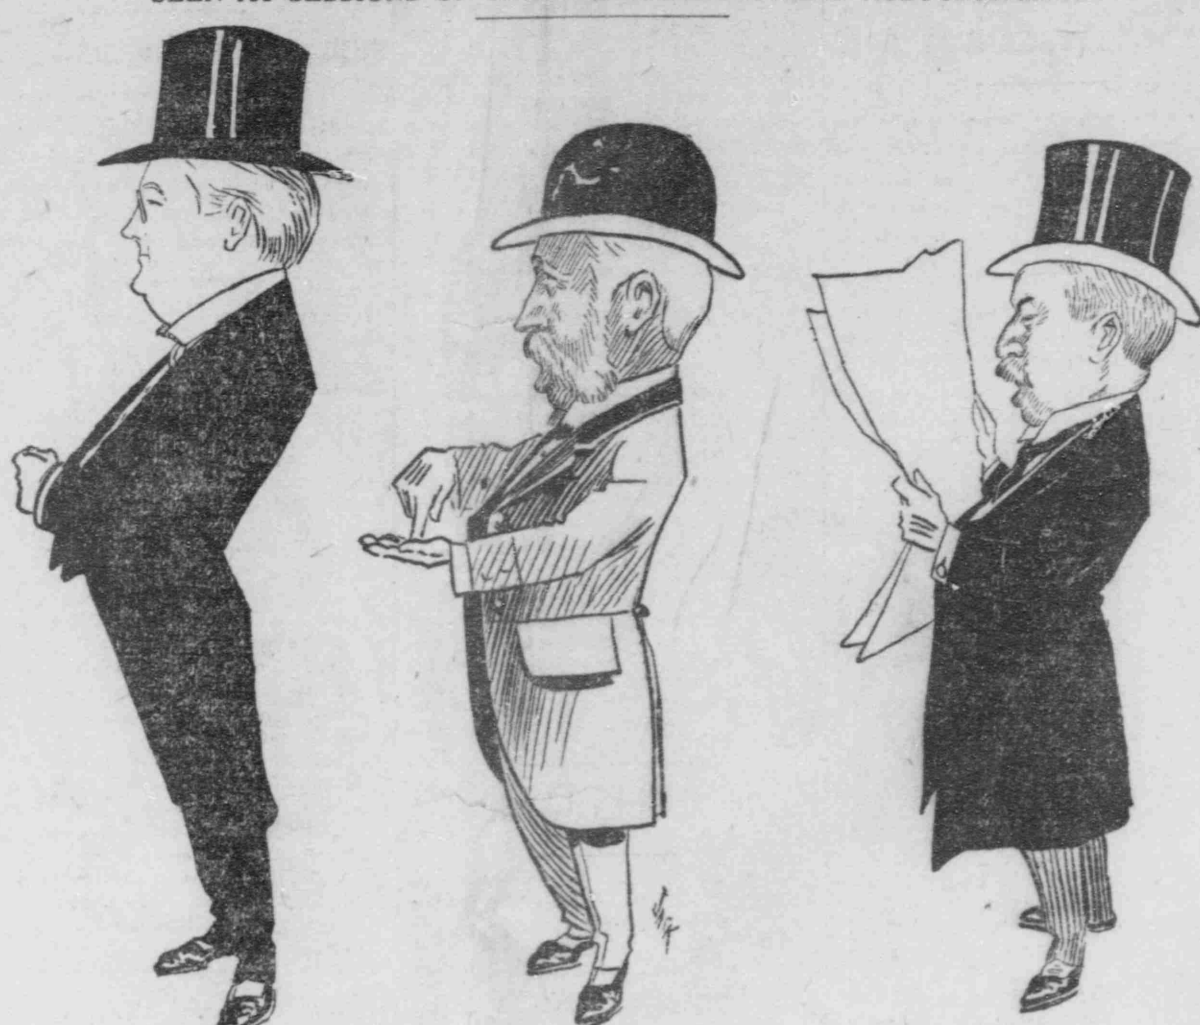

The luggage of departing passengers was searched, and they were not allowed to take with them more than ten silver soles each.

The situation arising from the advance in silver is somewhat improved.

Lone Bank Robber Gets $1,000.

Newton, Kans., Nov. 13.—The Midland National Bank in Newton, was held up this afternoon by one man and robbed of about $1,000 in currency. The robber was rather tall, slight in weight, and of light complexion. He was about twenty-eight years old. So far as known he had no accomplices.

In addition to drawing interest funds deposited in banking dept. of Union Trust Company, 12 F. st., are subject to check at will. Savings accounts invited.

the Murder of Harry F. Smith.

Pittsburg, Nov. 13.—The funeral of Harry F. Smith, the young business man who was killed by a burglar in his father's house in terror-stricken Pittsburg last Sunday morning, took place here to-day.

With tears streaming from his eyes, Rev. Dr. Breed, who made the closing prayer, cried: "Oh, God, help the police of the city of Pittsburg to protect the lives of its citizens."

There is not a citizen in Pittsburg to-night but who wishes that prayer, for the hold-ups and robberies seem to continue without abatement—if anything, are getting worse. There were probably a score of arrests made to-day under pressure of the $7,000 reward which has been offered for the arrest and conviction of the perpetrators of the two recent murders. Charles Buccini, an Italian, who had a badly wounded hand, a wound which might have been inflicted by a pistol at close range, is in the hands of the police.

Even the women are taking a hand in the hold-up here. This morning Lillian Smith, a blonde of about forty years, took the reward and the first one she met was Joseph Cantano, of the Pressed Steel Car Company, and she told him to stand and deliver. Cantano pulled his gun to cover Lillian, but she was too quick, and took the gun herself also his roll and then chased him some blocks with his own weapon. She is under arrest.

Opens Fire on Them.

Daylight burglars entered the house of Mrs. Bassett, 539 Second avenue, at 9 o'clock this morning, while the street was torn up by city workmen. Mrs. Bassett opened fire with her gun the moment she saw a mask, and chased them out of the second-story back window, but did not hit either of them.

On crowded Smithfield street this afternoon a man attempted to drag a half grown girl into an alley, and did not release her until chased by some pedestrians, who heard her cries.

Charles Duffy, a criminal court this afternoon, turned state's evidence, and admitted that he had helped hold up aged Judge Hawkins some months ago.

Even Alleged kidnappers became excited. Last night a citizen, rushing to the corner to turn in an alarm of fire, was snatched by a policeman as a burglar, and hustled to the police station while the house burned.

Police Are Mystified.

The police were to-day once more thrown at their wits' end by developments in the case of Mrs. Jean Mitchell, the young woman who was so nearly crucified in her apartments last Sunday morning.

Mrs. Mitchell, who escaped from the Homeopathic Hospital about 1 o'clock this morning in spite of the orders of physicians, was at noon brought to the police station and lodged with Chief Egan for an hour. She insists that it was not her husband, William Mitchell, now under arrest at Canton, Ohio, who nailed her to the kitchen sink by nails driven through her hands, but that it was the work of housebreakers, who first knocked her senseless, then mistreated her in this way.

All effort to shake the woman's story was unavailable. She was confronted with the fact that Mitchell, whom she has thought was her husband, had a wife and family at Canton, Ohio, but this did not even shake her, and at last the police were forced to the belief that she was really mistreated by some of the army of thugs who have invaded Pittsburg.

Mrs. Mitchell's Story.

The story of Mrs. Mitchell, given to the police, is as follows:

"I was alone in my apartment early Sunday morning when I fell. When I regained consciousness my hands were nailed to the sink. I did not see the person who made the assault on me, or who nailed my hands. It could not have been my husband, however, as he was out of the city, and he would have had no object in treating me so.

"Why I was struck on the head, or why my hands were nailed to the sink, I do not know, but I'm sure it was not Billy."

PRESIDENT NEARING PANAMA.During Visit, Two Members of Canal Commission May Be Appointed.

The wireless station at the Washington Navy Yard received a message last night stating that the Louisiana, conveying the President and all on board were well and the weather fine. The message was sent via Guantanamo and Key West.

One of the subjects which will claim the attention of the President during his visit to Panama, is the appointment of two members of the Isthmian Canal Commission to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of Gov. Magoon and the failure of the Senate to confirm the nomination of J. Bucklin Bishop.

While a number of names have been under consideration, decision has been reserved until the President can look into the matter personally.

New York, Nov. 13.—Charged with forcing his way into the French consulate in this city and attempting to arrest the consul-general, M. Alcide Ebray, without a warrant, Policeman John Anglin, of the Old Slip station, has been suspended and summoned to appear before Commissioner Bingham for trial Thursday.

Mayor McClellan has written a letter of apology to the consul and assured M. Ebray that the charges will be corrected and the policeman punished.

GIVES LIFE TO SAVE OTHERS.Foreman in Slate Quarry Warns the Easton, Pa., Nov. 13.—Osborne Williams, foreman of the Penn-Bangor slate quarry at Wind Gap, was instantly killed to-day. A guy rope on a large derrick showed signs of weakening, and Williams went to warn his men away. Just as he got them out of harm's way the rope snapped and the derrick fell. A pin in the falling derrick struck Williams in the head, and he was killed. Williams was thirty years old, and leaves a widow and two children.

About the Table Three Times.

New York, Nov. 13.—Wild boar was the principal item on the menu at the fourth annual dinner of the Canadian Camp at the Hotel Astor, to-night. Gen. Cecil Clay, of Washington, was the guest of honor, and he helped to eat the unique dish, as well as others that smacked of the unusual.

Austin Corbin captured the boar in South America, and presented it to the camp, dressed and ready for the chef. The animal was brought in escorted by four solemn waiters. It was stretched on a great platter and roasted to a beautiful brown.

The head waiter led the march around the room, while the campers waived their napkins and cheered. The boar had for a tail a frizzled pink rosette and a baked apple was stuck between his jaws.

Really Ate It, They Say.

Exactly ten seconds after the escort of waiters walked right in and turned around and walked right out again there were slices of a dark pork-like meat on the tables, sent by Charles Hallack, founder of Forest and Stream, and the oldest huntsman in America. There were mountain sheep from the Canadian Rockies, the contributions of Bill and Jim Brewster. There were wild rice croquettes from the fields of the Mississippi; Bay St. George herring, and a real gamey soup, composed of a variety of ingredients.

Decorations Savor of Canada.

The Canadian Club is made up of men and women who cross the border occasionally to camp in the Canadian woods. The decorations, therefore, savored of Canada. The colonial flag hung with the Stars and Stripes over the speaker's dais. The diners were bountiful of Canadian haddock, and the tables were thrown with fresh potted maple and oak leaves. The souvenirs were tiny birch bark canoes, each carrying a cargo of tea.

Among the speakers present were Robert T. Morris, G. M. Bosworth, of Montreal; Charles G. D. Roberts, William H. Boardman, F. R. Lathford, of Toronto; Thomas Martindale, of Philadelphia; James Cruikshank, George Bird Grinnell, L. O. Armstrong, J. B. Snowball, of Chatham, N. B.; William J. Long, Charles Hallack, Austin Corbin, Dr. C. Falmes, John Markle, the Pennsylvania coal operator, and A. C. Chanollin.

NEED NOT HUNT A BRIDE.Sir Thomas Says the Woman Destined for Him Is Coming.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 13.—"God sends good women," said Sir Thomas Lipton, Irish knight and cup challenger, to-night. "So why should a poor man be so presumptuous as to hunt one?"

Sir Thomas said this in answer to the report that he was in this country searching for a bride. The Irishman is a guest of Randal Morgan, the financier, at his Chestnut Hill home, "Wyndmore."

"Wait, is my watchword," continued Sir Thomas. "Some day, some time, some where, sooner or later, the one woman in the world destined and chosen for the one man, comes along without his looking for her. When that girl comes along I shall claim her there and then, and thank God for sending her. In the meantime, I won't hunt. This story of my coming over here this time to look for a wife is a pure invention arising out of a joke of some friends."

London, Nov. 14.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily Express says that, taking advantage of the fact that by marrying Baron Liebenberg, Marie Sulzer, the actress, became an Austrian subject, the Prussian government has served a notice on her ordering her to quit the country within a fortnight on the ground that she is an undesirable alien.

If she does not comply she will be forcibly expelled by the police.

This step was taken to supplement the Kaiser's banishment to German Southwest Africa, of Prince Joachim, his majesty's cousin, who intended to marry the actress.

Here is his telegram to Frank A. Day, Gov. Johnson's private secretary and campaign manager, just made public:

"Have just heard of fight. Have been cast on the shore, where rocks are jagged and the sea wild on the roiling of my bearings, but am awfully tangled. Convey to your white chief, 'May God bless him.' Would my voice could aid. Draw on me for one thousand, my mite."

RIDICULE CHINA'S AWAKENINGJapanese Authorities Do Not Fear
the Yellow Peril.

London, Nov. 14.—The Tokyo correspondent of the Telegraph says that the Japanese authorities and newspapers ridicule the theory fostered in Europe that China is awakening to such an extent as to become a menace. The admiration of foreign critics displayed at the recent maneuvers of the Chinese army are regarded as ludicrous and superficial. It is certainly not shared in by the Japanese officers, who were present. Any increased fear abroad of the yellow peril based on the rumormongering of the Chinese army on Western lines is a ridiculous nightmare.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 13.—Following argument in the case of the United States against the members of the alleged drug trust, Judge Anderson, of the Federal court, to-day took the case under advisement, but said that the filing of denials precluded the defendants from raising the question of jurisdiction.

On the question of conspiracy in restraint of trade the court plainly intimated that he would hold with the government.

In addition two Nova Scotia barques, the Marion C. and White Wings, were abandoned at sea, the crews being rescued by passing steamers.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 13.—The matter to be investigated by the new Federal grand jury here to-morrow will be that of the disappearance of $61,500 from the St. Louis subtreasury.

The manner in which the shortage was discovered leaked out to-day in advance of the grand jury investigation. It was discovered October 5 by Chief Clerk Ralph P. Johnson, who is also cashier. The story told, and considered reliable, is to this effect:

Dyer now states that he had no knowledge of the shortage. He was called upon to locate it before his superior discovered it, that to prevent its discovery by Johnson he borrowed $61,500 from Ferguson after Johnson had come to check up, it being customary for each to borrow from the other in the regular business of the day, and that after Johnson had checked up he returned the $61,500 package to Ferguson's cage, where Johnson a little later found it.
